

Phil Yeh wins the Silver Pen Award at the first Utopia Convention, Mexico City, November 2003.

Phil Yeh was among special guests from around the world invited to the first Utopia Comic Book Convention at the World Trade Center in Mexico City from November 19-23, 2003. Here Phil is presented with the Silver Pen Award while the Aloha Spirit creator Dave Thorne and Usagi Yojimbo creator Stan Sakai look on with their awards. That's Ka-Boom Studio's Mauricio Martinez Cosio at the podium, presenting the English translations for the ceremony which also honored some of Mexico's legendary voice artists.

Cartoonists Across America & The World's founder Phil Yeh was one of the special guests at the first UTOPIA COMIC BOOK CONVENTION held at the World Trade Center in Mexico City from November 19-23, 2003. The convention was sponsored by Ka-Boom! Studio, Ormex and The World Trade Center as a way of showcasing the best Mexican comic book and animation artists and also celebrating some of the best talent worldwide. A new award called the Silver Pen was designed by Ka-Boom! Studio's Oscar Gonzales Loyo and presented to the guests at a special ceremony near the end of the convention. Award winners included; MAD magazine artist and creator of Groo the Wanderer, Sergio Aragones, French illustrator Francois Bocq, Mulan director Tony Bancroft, Argentinian illustrators Juan Gimenez and Carlos Meglia, Herobear & The Kid's creator Mike Kunkel, Mexican comic book artist Humberto Ramos now working for Marvel and DC, Usagi Yojimbo's creator Stan Sakai, the Aloha Spirit's creator Dave Thorne, comic book inker Sandra Hope, writer Philip Victor, and the Winged Tiger's creator Phil Yeh.

Yeh introduced the second issue of his new Patrick Rabbit bilingual comic books in Mexico with incredible response from fans of all ages. Patrick Rabbit Goes To Spain appears in the 14th issue of Yeh's popular Patrick Rabbit series. It follows up Yeh's earlier Patrick Rabbit Goes to Mexico which was published in the 12th issue of the series. In issue #16 in March, 2004, Yeh continues the adventure in Patrick Rabbit Goes to The Philippines. All these books are in both Spanish and English and feature guest appearances by Sergio Aragones, Gaby Maya, Jose Quintero, Klaus Leven, Geoff Bevington, Jon J. Murakami, and Dave Thorne. Issue #14 has a wonderful color cover by Lieve Jerger and Jon J. Murakami's Red the Dragon playing a sax with magical Juan Miró clouds coming out of the instrument. The Candy Queen is also on another cloud floating in front of the Familia Sagrada, one of Antoni Gaudí's great masterpieces in Barcelona, Spain.

This new bilingual series also features the work of Brenda Murphy AKA: The Candy Queen. Her magnificent candy sculptures are in the comics and Yeh has also created a new character based on the Candy Queen for the series. Chocolate was first developed by the ancient Aztec and Mayan cultures in Mexico before going to Spain around 500 years ago. Murphy and Yeh plan to continue these adventures throughout the world and Murphy is actually making some wonderful new creations for the new comics. These stories are perfect for all ages.

One of the best things about these conventions in other countries is the opportunity Yeh has to meet so many talented artists and writers from all over the world. He also gets a chance to explore the museums and in Mexico, the wonderful pyramids at Teotihuacán. This excursion to the ancient pyramids took members of the Ka-Boom Studio and artists Juan Gimenez, Stan Sakai, Dave Thorne, and Mike Kunkel out to climb the Pyramid of the Sun. A nice lunch at the famous Pyramid Charlie's followed. On another day, the artists had a chance to visit the fantastic Museum of Anthropology in Mexico City. This is the second biggest museum of this kind in the world (Cairo is biggest) and never ceases to amaze and inspire.

Yeh has been visiting Mexico City for the last few years and he is always inspired and energized by the experience. Plans call for the second Utopia Convention to be held in November of 2004 and we will be there with more members of Cartoonists Across America & The World.
